Hedges to Bid For Mayor's Post Again; Political Bee Busy

Lynch Eliminates Himself From Race For Cady's Job; Nearly All Council Members Aspire; Board Terms End

Circleville's political pot, simmering quietly for many months, was near the boiling stage Thursday with many candidates preparing to obtain nominating petitions from the board of elections, and others trying to decide whether they wish additional terms in offices they now fill. The deadline for filing petitions is June 9.

Mayor W. B. Cady, Democratic incumbent in the mayor's office, was assured of opposition Thursday from the Republican side of the political ring when Benton T. Hedges, three-time mayor and at present justice of the peace, declared that he would obtain his petition within the next day or two. Mr. Hedges will run with the full support of the Republican organization, he declared.

No definite opposition has been heard against Mayor Cady from his own party, although several persons have been speaking in hushed voices that they may decide to make the effort. One person, linked by many as a possible candidate for the nomination, definitely eliminated himself today. He is Frank A. Lynch, present councilman-at-large and one of the leading Democrats of the city. "I have never intended to be a candidate for mayor," Mr. Lynch declared, "and what's more I do not intend to be." He said that many persons had asked him concerning his political plans.

After visiting Granville, Mr. Coleman returned to his home, took a few extra clothes, and has not been seen or heard from since.

Coleman's term as county superintendent will expire Aug. 1. His successor will be Samuel Dillon, of Carbon Hill.

PSYCHIATRIST ADVISES MENTAL EXAMINATIONS FOR TRAFFIC VIOLATORS

CHICAGO, May 11—A startling percentage of traffic law violators are not just careless—they're crazy.

That, in sum, was the conclusion today of Dr. Lowell S. Selling, psychiatrist attached to the Detroit recorder's court. Dr. Selling told the Chicago convention of the American Psychiatric Association that his findings were based on a study of more than 500 motorists examined in psychiatric clinic of the Detroit traffic court.

Thirty-six percent of those examined, Dr. Selling said, were definitely feeble-minded, and of the rest only four percent were of superior intelligence. The average for the group, he claimed, was "borderline" mentality.

Dr. Selling said it was his belief traffic accidents could be greatly reduced if mental tests for motorists were more general.

Explosion Precedes Flames; Combustion Blamed For Holocaust

CHICAGO, May 11—A raging fire today swept the Calumet elevator of the Norris Grain company on Chicago's far South Side following a terrific explosion heard over a radius of several miles.

After a hasty check officials stated that from ten to fifteen of the forty-five employees who had reported for work might still be in the blazing building.

Soon after the explosion two unidentified employees, both terribly burned and unconscious, were rushed to South Chicago hospital.

Elevator Blown Apart

Supposedly caused by spontaneous combustion, the elevator, which is owned by the Rosenbaum brothers, Chicago grain dealers, was literally blown apart by the explosion.

Despite the efforts of every available piece of fire fighting equipment and two fire tugs playing their streams from the Calumet river the flames destroyed Rosenbaum elevators "B" and "C" and a series of eighteen storage bin silos in the plant. The Norris grain elevator across the river caught fire.

Upward of half a million dollars in property was destroyed by the onward march of the flames.

About 800 boys, juniors from schools throughout Ohio, will take part in Boys' State. For 10 days these boys will be engaged actively in the functions of state government under the supervision of trained men and with the assistance of state officials.

During the event elections will be held, a governor selected, and all other state officials named. The object of Boys' State is to train able young men to assume positions of leadership in their communities. Legion officials point out by this short school of intensive study in organization and operation of the American form of government, the young men learn that good government and good citizenship are inseparable.

LONDON REPORTS PACT BETWEEN SOVIET, TURKEY

LONDON, May 11—General Ismet Inonu, president of Turkey, has agreed to accept Soviet Russian military aid for defense of the Balkans in the event of an aggressive attack, the London Daily Express reported today.

The paper said the agreement was accomplished through General Maxime Weyand of France during talks with Inonu last week at Ankara. It means that Russian tanks and planes would cooperate with Turkish infantry and Cavalry.

Military experts, the Express added, consider the Turks alone would keep "hesitant Bulgaria" neutral in the event of a war and would prevent Salonika from falling to Germany and Italy.

State To Lose Big Sum In Tax, Commission Declares

COLUMBUS, May 11—The state stood to lose $500,000 a year, according to the Tax Commission, through a ruling of the Ohio Supreme Court which held that candy and confections are food and therefore are exempt from the retail sales tax.

The decision affirmed rulings of the lower courts of Summit county in a suit of E. A. Andrews, a confectioner, contesting the right of the state to collect the sales tax on candy and confections.

Andrews license had been revoked by the Tax Commission for failure to collect the tax on candy.

The court in its decision said that although "candy is a luxury the fact is not disproved that it is also a food."

DAVEY TO SEEK ANOTHER TERM AS GOVERNOR?

COLUMBUS, May 11—Often heard rumors that Former Gov. Martin L. Davey will make a bid for a third term in 1940 were given new currency today at the regional conference of Democratic women in Columbus.

Taking an active part in the conference were two of Davey's staunchest lieutenants, Mrs. Myrna Smith, his former secretary, and Mrs. Ann Makley, Dayton, president of the Federated Democratic Women of Ohio.

In hotel lobby conversation the former governor's re-entry in the gubernatorial wars in 1940 seemed to be accepted as a certainty.

Davey and Democrat State Chairman Arthur Limbach conferred at length last night but both said they did not touch on party candidates. The Democratic campaign deficit was one of the chief topics discussed.

4 P. M. MEETING VITAL

C. I. O. Chief To Negotiate With Individual Mine Operators

NEW YORK, May 11—In a dramatic early morning decision, John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O. and leader of the powerful United Mine Workers of America, today bowed to the pressure exerted by President Roosevelt and agreed to take action that would relieve the "grave crisis" facing the nation over the closed shop issue which has caused approximately 450,000 miners to stop working in the bituminous coal fields.

Unable, after a bitter, seven-week battle across the conference table, to come to terms in New York with the operators by the midnight last night "deadline" set by President Roosevelt, Lewis early this morning announced that unless this afternoon's audience develops an accord, he would negotiate agreements with individual companies and associations within the Appalachian field which are in agreement with his organization on the one vital issue (closed shop) involved.

Agreement Claimed

Lewis claims that between 70 and 80 percent of the bituminous operators in the great Appalachian region are willing immediately to sign a contract giving him the union shop (characterized by the operators as the closed shop). The operators vigorously deny this contention. At least 320,000 men are idle in this area.

In addition Lewis announced he will proceed at once to make new contracts with operators outside the Appalachian area, a territory in which 126,000 miners stopped work on May 4 and 5 on his orders. He expects that virtually all of these men will be back on the job by next Monday.

Lewis said that notification would be made during the day to bituminous coal operators in the districts outside the Appalachian region that the United Mine Workers of America which he heads is "prepared forthwith to execute contracts and immediately reinstate production."

Parley's End Awaited

As for the Appalachian field, with whose operators he has been at loggerheads over his "union shop" demand, Lewis said no effort to negotiate individual contracts would be made until after conclusion of today's conference.

His statement:

"Pending a meeting of this joint subcommittee at 4 o'clock, no action will be taken or engagements made within the Appalachian area."

The 320,000 or more miners in the Appalachian region have been idle since April 1 after the operators and miners failed to renew their agreement which expired on March 31.

Wages and working conditions are not involved. Although the

OHIO ASSEMBLY NEARS ITS END

Key Measures Approved; Minor Business Still On Docket

COLUMBUS, May 11—While Democrats waited today that the Republican administration's program for relief and enabling legislation for matching would prove totally inadequate, the legislature sped toward adjournment with two key measures passed in the house and senate.

House members battled for three hours over the amended Thomas bill which would enable cities to approve special relief levies by a majority vote in 1939.

It was the first major test of the administration's strength and house leaders grew alarmed over the lack of enough votes to swing the measure as an emergency.

Some Votes Switched

Finally enough Republican members were urged to switch their votes to assure a 92 to 41 victory for the Republican side.

The bill provides for a 55 percent vote in 1940 and reversion to the present 65 percent majority in 1941. Levies on real estate and tangible property would not exceed one and one-half mills.

Little difficulty was encountered in the senate as the Liggett-Kane measure authorizing subdivisions to transfer local funds for relief matching was approved.

The bill carried a provision for reimbursing the general revenue fund. This section was construed as a move to avoid a threatened loss of $3,000,000 in federal funds because several senators were informed that the transfer of motor

G-MEN CALLED TO W. VIRGINIA KIDNAP INQUIRY

WHEELING, W. Va., May 11—G-men were called in today to assume charge of the search for three men who purportedly kidnaped 15-year-old Mary E. Hembr early Monday and transported her into Ohio before she managed to escape.

The girl reported to police that she had been abducted while walking home from a carnival. Near Colerain, O., she said, she leaped from the moving machine when her captors relaxed their vigilance. She bruised and scratched her arms and legs in the jump.

A passing motorist took her to the Ohio state police headquarters at Bridgeport where she related her tale. Yesterday afternoon, after detectives quizzed her again, they decided to turn the case over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation since it involved a probable violation of the Lindbergh kidnap law.

Miss Hembra said the men forced her to lie on the rear floor of a black sedan, threatening her with death if she attempted to summon help. Scared, she said she did not see the driver's face but described the other with a pimpled face.

Wheeling and Ohio police, working on meagre clues, spread a dragnet over the tri-state area yesterday.

London Believes Direct
Contact May Help End
Deadlock

MOSCOW, May 11.—Soviet Russia is not satisfied with the assurances regarding the proposed Anglo-French-Soviet anti-aggression agreement voiced by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain, the authoritative newspaper Izvestia indicated today.

(Background note: In an address before the House of Commons in London yesterday, Chamberlain, seeking to clear up what he termed a misunderstanding, said that Britain and France did not propose that Russia should fight in defense of any European nation unless Anglo-French forces already had intervened against a possible aggressor.)

Izvestia, commenting on Chamberlain's assurances, continued to insist that, under the present Moscow-London negotiations an unequal burden is being placed upon the U. S. S. R.

"Collaboration implies reciprocity," Izvestia stated. "Where there is no reciprocity, real collaboration cannot be brought about."

LONDON, May 11.—A visit to Moscow by British Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax to hasten Soviet adherence to the Anglo-French anti-aggression bloc was envisaged in parliamentary circles today.

These quarters expressed belief that a direct contact between Viscount Halifax and Soviet government authorities might facilitate a London-Moscow accord aimed at protecting Poland, Rumania and other nations against possible attack.

Lord Halifax will see either Vladimir Potemkin, Soviet vice commissar of foreign affairs, or V. K. Molotov, Russian premier and new foreign commissar, when he arrives at Geneva this weekend for the forthcoming League of Nations council meeting.

He may continue on to Moscow after the session at Geneva, it was said.

Speculation over Lord Halifax's possible trip developed after Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, addressing the House of Commons, gave assurances that Soviet Russia would not be expected to take up arms in defense of any European nation unless Britain and France did so as well.

Coughing his speech in cautious phrases because the London-Moscow negotiations are still in progress, Chamberlain declared:

"If the Soviet government wished to make their own intervention contingent on that of Great Britain and France, his majesty's government would have no objection."

The prime minister added that he considered the British negotiations with the Soviets a matter of the "greatest importance and urgency." It was revealed that his assurances had already been forwarded to Moscow through diplomatic channels before he made his statement in commons.

Meanwhile, the foreign affairs committee of the cabinet was called into session to discuss the next step in the Moscow negotiations and the general government policy regarding Russia.

Following this meeting, the impression prevailed in British circles that Chamberlain's declaration had cleared the atmosphere and that

M. M. Hott, florist, came in contact with a splinter causing a wound which at the time he paid no attention to but which resulted in a bad infection. Has been in a Columbus hospital since Saturday but has sufficiently improved to be removed to his home on Long street.

The joint Lutheran Brotherhoods of Ashville and Lockbourne were in regular monthly session Wednesday evening at the Lockbourne church. A banquet was served followed by program. The next session will be at the Ashville church — strawberry time, they say.

Met here quite recently Clayton Garner and wife from Akron who had just "run down" they said, to see how all of us were getting along. Mr. Garner is one of the "old graduates" of Madison Township Hi, and told us he has been at the general ticket office in Akron for the past 22 years and works along with seven others in the office. Says they have had one hundred thousand dollar ticket sales in a single year but not so good now.

The romantic stars of "Alexander's Ragtime Band," the first film to bring old-time popular songs to the screen, co-star with Jolson in the new film. Tyrone Power and Alice Faye enact the deeply human story of Rose, who loved as only some women can.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Two of the screen's leading dramatic players, Sylvia Sidney and Leif Erickson, play the chief roles in Paramount's "...one third of a nation..." the screen version of the sensational Broadway play, which will have its first local showing tomorrow at the Cliftona theatre.

Taking its title from President Roosevelt's epoch-making second inaugural address, in which he said: "I find one third of a nation ill-housed, ill-clad and ill-nourished," the picture makes a bold and thrilling attack on America's vicious slums and makes a heart-breaking plea for a better deal for the oppressed third of our population.

As the principal character in the drama, Miss Sidney portrays a romantic and courageous daughter of the slums, who decides that the time has come to do something about conditions. In her battle against the vested and snug interests she enlists her sweetheart, Erickson, who plays a wealthy but social-minded son of the upper classes.

It's the pattern—no mistaking that—and you'll find plenty of admiring glances following wherever you travel.

But if attention had been all we were after, we might have got merely that with a lot less pains than we took.

What we were shooting for was something a heap more important than attention: a picture that does you justice—and mister, look how gloriously we hit the bull's-eye!

You try out the driver's seat—it fits. You take hold of the wheel—it seems molded to your hand. There's the gas treadle, right where it should be...

So you ease down on the gas—and pronto, you've got rhythm! You fingertip the wheel—presto! there's control!

You wing down the straightaway, cruise around curves, swoop up the hill. Eagerly, instantly, amiably, your car does what you want—it's almost a part of you, your wish is its action!

So, you happily discover, here's where you belong!

London Believes Direct
Contact May Help End
Deadlock

MOSCOW, May 11.—Soviet Russia is not satisfied with the assurances regarding the proposed Anglo-French-Soviet anti-aggression agreement voiced by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain, the authoritative newspaper Izvestia indicated today.

(Background note: In an address before the House of Commons in London yesterday, Chamberlain, seeking to clear up what he termed a misunderstanding, said that Britain and France did not propose that Russia should fight in defense of any European nation unless Anglo-French forces already had intervened against a possible aggressor.)

Izvestia, commenting on Chamberlain's assurances, continued to insist that, under the present Moscow-London negotiations, an unequal burden is being placed upon the U. S. S. R.

"Collaboration implies reciprocity," Izvestia stated. "Where there is no reciprocity, real collaboration cannot be brought about."

LONDON, May 11.—A visit to Moscow by British Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax to hasten Soviet adherence to the Anglo-French anti-aggression bloc was envisaged in parliamentary circles today.

These quarters expressed belief that a direct contact between Viscount Halifax and Soviet government authorities might facilitate a London-Moscow accord aimed at protecting Poland, Rumania and other nations against possible attack.

Lord Halifax will see either Vladimir Potemkin, Soviet vice commissar of foreign affairs, or V. K. Molotov, Russian premier and new foreign commissar, when he arrives at Geneva this weekend for the forthcoming League of Nations council meeting.

He may continue on to Moscow after the session at Geneva, it was said.

Speculation over Lord Halifax's possible trip developed after Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, addressing the House of Commons, gave assurances that Soviet Russia would not be expected to take up arms in defense of any European nations unless Britain and France did so as well.

Coughing his speech in cautious phrases because the London-Moscow negotiations are still in progress, Chamberlain declared: "If the Soviet government wished to make their own intervention contingent on that of Great Britain and France, his majesties government would have no objection."

The prime minister added that he considered the British negotiations with the Soviets a matter of the "greatest importance and urgency." It was revealed that his assurances had already been forwarded to Moscow through diplomatic channels before he made his statement in commons. Total Of Insurance Plot
Outrages Expected
To Reach 100

MANY SUSPECTS JAILED

Mass Questioning Attempted
In Effort To Obtain
'Master's' Name

PHILADELPHIA, May 11 — Expected to total 100, suspected deaths attributable to Philadelphia's insurance-murder plot zoomed to 34 today with the disclosure by police that nine new slayings are being checked as the result of revelations by 24 defendants already in custody.

Nine new suspects for whom warrants were issued also brought to a total of 40 the persons detained or sought as fugitives in the mushrooming probe of violent deaths by which ring leaders callously collected upwards of $100,000 on the victim's life insurance policies.

Preparing for resumption of mass murder trials May 22, authorities were scheduled to hold arraignments for six defendants today in an effort to speed justice in the nation's greatest series of syndicate slayings.

"Master Mind" Hunted

Employing tactics reminiscent of Russian "treason" investigations, detectives meanwhile herded all 24 arsenic ring prisoners into two groups in an unprecedented move to bulwark present results of their investigations by learning the name of the real "master mind" of the conspiracy.

Without preliminary announcement police made the rounds of the prison cells where the various suspects were confined, bundled them in patrol wagons and hurried them to two separate district police stations, far from the eyes and ears of "outsiders." Leaders and their accessories confronted each other. Results of the mass questioning remained an official secret after the defendants were located in their cells.

COUNCIL TALKS TRAFFIC LIGHTS IN SCHOOL ZONE

Signals Ordered Halted Until Adjustments Are Made

MISHAP DANGER CITED

Lynch Declares Motorists Not Given Warning Of Changes

Councilmen are not satisfied with the operation of the traffic lights on Court street at Mill and Corwin street. They voted Wednesday night that the lights be turned off until some adjustments are made.

Councilman Frank Lynch presented the light problem to council. He contended there would be a serious accident at one of the intersections unless some adjustments were made. "There is no warning given to motorists," he told councilmen. "The green light goes off before the red light comes on. There is no caution signal to motorists. This makes a very dangerous situation."

"I move that the lights be shut off until some adjustments are made," he said. Council approved his motion.

The lights were installed recently for the protection of school children and to slow down traffic on Court street. One was purchased by the city, the other by the B. P. O. Elks lodge as a part of the safety campaign or the organization. The light at Mill and Court is maintained by the city and kept in operation throughout the day. The one at Corwin and Court streets is maintained by the school. It is kept in operation during the periods children are going to and from school and when school activities are held.

Representative Expected

In the discussion that followed Mr. Lynch's motion, Mayor W. B. Cady said a representative of the company that sold the lights was expected in the city to make some adjustments on them. The question had been discussed also with employees of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. to see if adjustments can be made.

Councilman Clarence Helvering said he believed some arrangement should be worked out so the lights are properly synchronized. He explained the operation of the school light on a part time basis sometimes results in both lights having the same timing. "When both lights are green it causes motorists to speed up in the district to make both lights," he said. Mayor Cady said a representative of the firm selling the lights would be requested to see that they are properly adjusted or "take them back."

PETTENGILL

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

HITLER TAKES ON THE PRESS

Herr Hitler fumbled the ball in his reply to President Roosevelt. Appealing for world opinion and particularly for American opinion, he appealed his jury in the face. With that incredible stupidity with which diplomatic Germany short circuits enormous efforts in peace and war. Mr. Hitler demanded that the American press be muzzled!

Can you beat it? Knowing that relatively few Americans understand German, knowing that still fewer would get up at 6:30 A. M. to hear him on the radio, knowing American newspapers were the chief vehicle he had to get his story to America, he asks why the democracies "are not capable of controlling their newspapers". That would mean they would not print his speech! How can you explain woodenheadness like this? Is it possible that Secretary Ickes ghost-wrote Hitler's speech! With a frightened and angry world all around him, immersed in a sea of domestic difficulties, Mr. Hitler has to take on the free press of America! He is a glutton for punishment. Better men than he have monkeyed with that buzzaw!

Mr. Hitler, our democracy includes much more than a free press. Yet democracy in a vital sense is a free press. For democracy is discussion.

We hold, Mr. Hitler, that "governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed". And that consent must be free and informed. And so we have newspapers. You and Stalin and Mussolini deny that principle. To you "democracy is a rotting corpse". Nevertheless we believe passionately that even if you and your fellow dictators turn out the lights, perhaps for a new Dark Age, yet the day will come again, as it did in ancient Greece, as it did at Gallie, in the free cities of Mediaeval times, in Wilhelm Tell's Switzerland, in Scotland and Ireland, in America in 1776, when men, just because they are men, and not human cattle, will shake their bleeding fists in the faces of such as you, and demand once more to be free.

There are such men in Germany. There always have been, thank God. Pastor Niemöller is one, if he still lives. And did you never read of the Student Revolution in the '30s and '40s—a century ago? Is the great name of Carol Schurz unfamiliar to your ears? He had to seek in America the freedom men like you denied him in the Fatherland.

Did your own Schiller never write of freedom? And was it not he who said "Against stupidity the gods themselves contend in vain"?

Did your advisers fail to tell you of the Bill of Rights of the American Constitution? Did you think our Constitution was a plaything, to be tossed aside? Did you never read of Huey Long's effort to tax a free press out of existence? Are you ignorant of what the "Nine Old Men" of our Supreme Court said of his effort? Let me remind you. The Court said this:

"Since informed public opinion is the most potent of all restraints upon misgovernment, the suppression of a free press cannot be regarded otherwise than with grave concern. To allow it to be fettered is to fetter ourselves."

We want a free press, not for the benefit of publishers. We want it for ourselves. We want to form our own judgments on public affairs. We don't want them formed for us. We want to make our own decisions. We even want to make our own mistakes. We have had to fight for free courts, for a free Congress, for a free people. We know who came to our aid. It was the newspapers. We know that when the story of these troubled times is written there will be a golden chapter on the free press of America.

You tell your papers what to print, what to leave unsaid. You control your radio, your pulpit, your political platform, your lecture room. If you make errors, you hide them. And so you deny yourself and your people the chance to correct them. You deny yourself the benefit of honest criticism. You muzzle the watchman.

Your axis partner says "What are the three words of your dogma? Believe, obey, fight". The language of slaves. Believe what the newspapers are told to tell. The truth is what is expedient. And Stalin. His papers were ordered to say nothing of the famine of 1933. And three million Kulaks died, needlessly. The vital statistics were suppressed. What difference did it make to Stalin to know of the poor beggars with bloated stomachs, offering their wedding rings for garbage? We may occasionally have a "kept" newspaper, Mr. Hitler and Mr. Ickes. But if so, we Americans will take our chances with advertisers rather than dictators.

We cannot distinguish good dictators from bad ones, those with red shirts or black shirts. Political murder and mass exile, the crushing of human dignity, the decadence of moral values, the death up a plush chair to round out "The Circle" on Sunday, May 14. The initiation committee for the broadcast over the NBC red network at 9 p. m. consists of Lawrence Tibbett, Madeleine Carroll, the Marx Brothers, the Fourtome, and Robert Emmet Dolan's orchestra.

The gentleman from Paducah, Kentucky will bring along a few of his choice stories to entertain the millions of "Circle" members who sit by the loudspeaker at home. Cobb, who has turned from writing short stories to acting in the movies of late, will also attempt to hold his own in the inevitable debate with Groucho Marx that each new member must go through.

HYMN RESCUED FOUR

Dr. William L. Stidger describes how a hymn saved the lives of four men who were on the torpedoed "Lusitania" in his "Getting the Most Out of Life" talk on Friday, May 19.

The quartet of brave men, after clinging to a damaged life-raft through most of a chilling night, decided to sing one chorus of "Abide With Me," then sink quietly below the surface together. The music of the hymn guided a destroyer directly to the dark spot where the men had given up hope of rescue.

Leading soloists singing hymns is a regular feature of the "Getting the Most Out of Life" program, which is broadcast over the NBC blue network, Mondays through Fridays, at 10:45 a. m.

COUNCIL TALKS TRAFFIC LIGHTS IN SCHOOL ZONE

Signals Ordered Halted Until Adjustments Are Made

MISHAP DANGER CITED

Lynch Declares Motorists Not Given Warning Of Changes

Councilmen are not satisfied with the operation of the traffic lights on Court street at Mill and Corwin street. They voted Wednesday night that the lights be turned off until some adjustments are made.

Councilman Frank Lynch presented the light problem to council. He contended there would be a serious accident at one of the intersections unless some adjustments were made. "There is no warning given to motorists," he told councilmen. "The green light goes off before the red light comes on. There is no caution signal to motorists. This makes a very dangerous situation."

"I move that the lights be shut off until some adjustments are made," he said. Council approved his motion.

The lights were installed recently for the protection of school children and to slow down traffic on Court street. One was purchased by the city, the other by the B. P. O. Elks lodge as a part of the safety campaign or the organization. The light at Mill and Court is maintained by the city and kept in operation throughout the day. The one at Corwin and Court streets is maintained by the school. It is kept in operation during the periods children are going to and from school and when school activities are held.

Representative Expected

In the discussion that followed Mr. Lynch's motion, Mayor W. B. Cady said a representative of the company that sold the lights was expected in the city to make some adjustments on them. The question had been discussed also with employees of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. to see if adjustments can be made.

Councilman Clarence Helvering said he believed some arrangement should be worked out so the lights are properly synchronized. He explained the operation of the school light on a part time basis sometimes results in both lights having the same timing. "When both lights are green it causes motorists to speed up in the district to make both lights," he said. Mayor Cady said a representative of the firm selling the lights would be requested to see that they are properly adjusted or "take them back."

Webster headed the ship about and started towards New York at reduced speed. Passengers will be given the choice of a 50 percent refund on their fares or an 8½ day cruise on the Rotterdam.

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

HITLER TAKES ON THE PRESS

Herr Hitler fumbled the ball in his reply to President Roosevelt. Appealing for world opinion and particularly for American opinion, he slapped his jury in the face. With that incredible stupidity with which diplomatic Germany short circuits enormous efforts in peace and war. Mr. Hitler demanded that the American press be muzzled!

Can you beat it? Knowing that relatively few Americans understand German, knowing that still fewer would get up at 6:30 A. M. to hear him on the radio, knowing American newspapers were the chief vehicle he had to get his story to America, he asks why the democracies "are not capable of controlling their newspapers". That would mean they would not print his speech! How can you explain his woodenheadness like this? Is it possible that Secretary Ickes ghost-wrote Hitler's speech!

With a frightened and angry world all around him, immersed in a sea of domestic difficulties, Mr. Hitler has to take on the free press of America! He is a glutton for punishment. Better men than he have monkeyed with that buzzsaw!

Mr. Hitler, our democracy includes much more than a free press. Yet democracy in a vital sense is a free press. For democracy is discussion.

We hold, Mr. Hitler, that "governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed". And that consent must be free and informed. And so we have newspapers. You and Stalin and Mussolini deny that principle. To you "democracy is a rotting corpse". Nevertheless we believe passionately that even if you and your fellow dictators turn out the lights, perhaps for a new Dark Age, yet the day will come again, as it did in ancient Greece, as it did at Galliee, in the free cities of Mediaeval times, in Wilhelm Tell's Switzerland, in Scotland and Ireland, in America in 1776, when men, just because they are men, and not human cattle, will shake their bleeding fists in the faces of such as you, and demand once more to be free.

There are such men in Germany. There always have been, thank God. Pastor Niemöller is one, if he still lives. And did you never read of the Student Revolution in the '30s and '40s—a century ago? Is the great name of Carol Schurz unfamiliar to your ears? He had to seek in America the freedom men like you denied him in the Fatherland.

Did your own Schiller never write of freedom? And was it not he who said "Against stupidity the gods themselves contend in vain"?

Did your advisers fail to tell you of the Bill of Rights of the American Constitution? Did you think our Constitution was a plaything, to be tossed aside? Did you never read of Huey Long's effort to tax a free press out of existence? Are you ignorant of what the "Nine Old Men" of our Supreme Court said of his effort? Let me remind you. The Court said this:

"Since informed public opinion is the most potent of all restraints upon misgovernment, the suppression of a free press cannot be regarded otherwise than with grave concern. To allow it to be fettered is to fetter ourselves."

We want a free press, not for the benefit of publishers. We want it for ourselves. We want to form our own judgments on public affairs. We don't want them formed for us. We want to make our own decisions. We even want to make our own mistakes. We have had to fight for free courts, for a free Congress, for a free people. We know who came to our aid. It was the newspapers. We know that when the story of these troubled times is written there will be a golden chapter on the free press of America.

You tell your papers what to print, what to leave unsaid. You control your radio, your pulpit, your political platform, your lecture room. If you make errors, you hide them. And so you deny yourself and your people the chance to correct them. You deny yourself the benefit of honest criticism. You muzzle the watchman.

Your axis partner says "What are the three words of your dogma? Believe, obey, fight". The language of slaves. Believe what the newspapers are told to tell. The truth is what is expedient. And Stalin. His papers were ordered to say nothing of the famine of 1933. And three million Kulaks died, needlessly. The vital statistics were suppressed. What difference did it make to Stalin to know of the poor beggars with bloated stomachs, offering their wedding rings for garbage? We may occasionally have a "kept" newspaper, Mr. Hitler and Mr. Ickes. But if so, we Americans will take our chances with advertisers rather than dictators.

We cannot distinguish good dictators from bad ones, those with red shirts or black shirts. Political murder and mass exile, the crushing of human dignity, the decadence of moral values, the death of Truth, the stinking gangrene that the State is all, and man and God nothing—all this cancels out every pain. It corrodes all progress.

Nevertheless, I see no point in becoming a war partner of red Russia against Hitler's Nazi Germany, or Mussolini's Italy. Nor have I ever been able to understand why no atrocity of Stalin's is ever rebuked by any one in Washington.

HYMN RESCUED FOUR

Dr. William L. Stidger describes how a hymn saved the lives of four men who were on the torpedoed "Lusitania" in his "Getting the Most Out of Life" talk on Friday, May 19.

The quartet of brave men, after clinging to a damaged life-raft through most of a chilling night, decided to sing one chorus of "Abide With Me," then sink quietly below the surface together. The music of the hymn guided a destroyer directly to the dark spot where the men had given up hope of rescue.

Leading soloists singing hymns is a regular feature of the "Getting the Most Out of Life" program, which is broadcast over the NBC blue network, Mondays through Fridays, at 10:45 a. m.

GOVERNOR MAY APPOINT THREE TO COMMISSION

Building Authority Next On Bricker's 'Ripper' Program

SOME BILLS REPORTED

Civil Service Measure Put Back In Pigeon-Hole By Committee

COLUMBUS, May 11—Another reorganization bill of the Bricker administration to abolish the state institutional building authority was in the senate hopper today, while the senate judiciary committee placed a measure adding a third member to the Civil Service Commission back in the pigeon hole.

The civil service bill has been on the shelf since it was passed by the house and has been scheduled for hearing several times and action deferred. Latest date for a hearing is next Tuesday night.

Rushing to permit the governor to appoint three new members to the building authority, the newest reorganization bill introduced by Sen. Stanley McKie (R-Cincinnati) was referred to the committee on banks and banking and the committee scheduled a hearing for today.

Authority Established
The last general assembly established the authority at former Governor Davey's request and was empowered to engage in a $7,500,000 building program for state institutions.

The judiciary committee also recommended bills for passage which would:

Permit persons who are not attorneys to practice before the state Public Utilities commission.

Provide penalties for persons soliciting business for attorneys, a measure aimed at the prevention of "ambulance chasing."

The committee killed a substitute bill which would have allowed running races until 7 o'clock at night. The original bill provided

CATTLE PRICES HIGHER; PORKERS DOWN AT SALE

Cattle prices were steady to slightly higher and hogs lower at the livestock auction Wednesday. "Farmers are too busy to take time out at present," Harry J. Briggs, service manager of the Farm Bureau, stated in summing up the lower hog receipts. Receipts this week amounted to 665 as compared with 715 last week.

Good steers and heifers sold from $9 to $10.10. Last week's top was $10. Medium steers and heifers sold from $7.20 to $9, about 25 cents above last week's quotations.

Good to choice hogs sold from $6.75 to $6.80. Last week's top was $7. There were not sufficient sheep on sale to make a market.

Building Authority Next On Bricker's 'Ripper' Program

SOME BILLS REPORTED

Civil Service Measure Put Back In Pigeon-Hole By Committee

COLUMBUS, May 11—Another reorganization bill of the Bricker administration to abolish the state institutional building authority was in the senate hopper today, while the senate judiciary committee placed a measure adding a third member to the Civil Service Commission back in the pigeon hole.

The civil service bill has been on the shelf since it was passed by the house and has been scheduled for hearing several times and action deferred. Latest date for a hearing is next Tuesday night.

Rushing to permit the governor to appoint three new members to the building authority, the newest reorganization bill introduced by Sen. Stanley McKie (R-Cincinnati) was referred to the committee on banks and banking and the committee scheduled a hearing for today.

Authority Established
The last general assembly established the authority at former Governor Davey's request and was empowered to engage in a $7,500,000 building program for state institutions.

The judiciary committee also recommended bills for passage which would:

Permit persons who are not attorneys to practice before the state Public Utilities commission.

Provide penalties for persons soliciting business for attorneys, a measure aimed at the prevention of "ambulance chasing."

The committee killed a substitute bill which would have allowed running races until 7 o'clock at night. The original bill provided

CATTLE PRICES HIGHER; PORKERS DOWN AT SALE

Cattle prices were steady to slightly higher and hogs lower at the livestock auction Wednesday.

"Farmers are too busy to take time out at present," Harry J. Briggs, service manager of the Farm Bureau, stated in summing up the lower hog receipts. Receipts this week amounted to 665 as compared with 715 last week.

Good steers and heifers sold from $9 to $10.10. Last week's top was $10. Medium steers and heifers sold from $7.20 to $9, about 25 cents above last week's quotations.

Good to choice hogs sold from $6.75 to $6.80. Last week's top was $7. There were not sufficient sheep on sale to make a market.

The house welfare committee reported out a bill setting up a 54 hour week and a nine hour day for employees of state welfare institutions and altering the maintenance provisions.

Supporters of the bill said it would be an inducement to employees to live outside institutions thus providing more room for patients. The bill would allow the $35 monthly maintenance allowance to be added to their salaries.

THE WICKED DEMOCRACIES

NOW some of the autocrats are complaining that, with the rich democracies arming themselves and their friendly neighbors on a lavish scale, rivalry of the two groups has become a struggle of men against money. They think it isn't fair. When they say it, they are pointing their fingers especially at Great Britain, France and America, regarding the first two as definite rivals and Uncle Sam as a supporter of their villainy.

This is a very curious attitude when you analyze it. For it should be evident to all the world that the free countries, including our own, postponed arming as long as possible, and only started to rearm when the bossed countries were armed camps devoted almost exclusively to military pursuits.

It is almost incredible that, in the midst of our nineteenth century civilization, two powerful nations and some petty imitators have concentrated on armament to a degree that dwarfs normal business enterprise, makes their countries armed camps, and makes government itself a criminal racket. And it certainly is the limit when, having driven their neighbors to defensive measures, the militarists piously turn and attack the defensive democracies as "war-makers".

The world, of course, knows better.

JAPAN CALMS DOWN

THERE has been at least one piece of reassuring news lately on the war and diplomacy fronts. It is that Japan refuses to enter a military alliance with Germany. Many Americans have supposed such a bond already existed, but the Japanese treaty pledges evidently did not bind that country to military support of the Fascist "axis" in Europe.

The gloved hand of John Bull is seen in this decision. Britain is supposed to be making a deal with Japan to insure the latter's "benevolent neutrality" in the case of a European war. Possibly, too, the return of the American fleet to the Pacific has something to do with Japan's action, although the Japs would never admit it.

From all accounts, the Japanese militarists are unhappy at the way things are going in Asia. Having almost exhausted their resources and credit in the Chinese war, they seem mired there, harassed by guerrilla attacks on their thin-stretched lines and too proud to withdraw.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up at what I thought was an early hour, but it wasn't. Just an overcast sky. Thought of the farmer who overslept one morning until 5 o'clock and when he appeared at the breakfast table told his wife: "Breakfast just starting, chores not done, only seven hours until noon, the day half gone and not a thing done." If I had to get up at 5 the day would be practically ruined.

Learned that Ed Sensenbrenner is a pessimist. Says that he has not yet put away his ear muffs, for he remembers one severe frost of May 18 and another in June that killed all of Doctor Clarke's flowers. And Ed wears both suspenders and a belt. Noted flannel trousers appearing here and there, but the first of the season I saw on Elliot Henry. Straw hats now any day.

Mosquitoes. Really, they are here. And in greater numbers than I ever have experienced before at this time of year. The other evening was along Darby creek at sundown, and here they were. Drove of them. Wonder why folk say "drives" about mosquitoes.

Believe flocks would be more nearly correct, but "flock" seems to me to be a rather weak word when stacked up alongside of "drove." Millions of mosquitoes. Smith Hulse said the pests are even more numerous now than they usually are in mid-Summer.

Henry Swearingen brought in a beautiful bouquet of flowers from his farm garden, one of the most famous in these parts. Henry comes here each Summer from the East and spends the warm and hot months tending his blossoming plants. This time there were yellow daisies, tulips and French lilies, four different kinds.

Chatted with Elmer Clifton, who told me of how he started out to be a carpenter and really was one when he decided to go into the garage business. His helpers received $1.50 a day and Elmer aimed at $2 a day for himself. Built one of the largest barns in Pickaway county when he was just a kid. Imagine carpenters working for $1.50 a day.

Three salesmen were in and told of indications of business pick-up all through the Midwest and voicing confidence of a rise as soon as the coal strike is settled. And that settlement looks to be here. The welfare of this nation is more important than the welfare of any group of men, be they employees or employers. Roosevelt was right in taking a hand there and demanding that the warfare be ended. Everyone was beginning to feel the effect of the closedown. How many coal trains have you seen pass through the ville lately. Few, if any, and generally there are many each day.

In the evening did go to Buckeye lake with Bish Given and Earl Smith, there to go for a boat ride that raised blisters on both my hands before I turned the oars over to the barrister. Caught a few bluegills, but only a few. A lovely evening with a pair of old-timers sitting at the pier when we returned, they telling us of the good old days when those waters teemed with bass and many other varieties of fish. Well, maybe they caught more fish back in those days, but the lake is the same today as then and the sky and Spring breeze the same. And they could not have enjoyed them more.

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN.

McREYNOLDS INTENDS TO RESIGN

WASHINGTON — Publication of this story may change the situation, but latest Supreme Court news is that Justice McReynolds contemplates stepping down from the bench in the near future.

The Justice, now in his 78th year, has told his closest friends that he would get out at the end of the present court term, or at the latest, he would retire next October when the Court convenes again.

These friends have their fingers crossed, however, because once before during the current year, McReynolds told them he planned to resign. Then newspaper stories regarding his resignation got the old gentleman's dander up and he decided to stay on the bench just to prove the newspapers wrong.

McReynolds is now the oldest member of the Supreme Court in point of service, and also in point of age. Appointed because Woodrow Wilson wanted to get McReynolds out of the Attorney Generalship, the Justice was then considered a liberal. But he has been a thorn in the side of liberalism ever since.

At the present Court session, the Justice has become more and more sour, and more crude in badgering lawyers appearing before him. He seems to take a sort of sadistic delight in taunting them, interrupting in the middle of their most vital arguments.

Experienced attorneys have adopted the practice of smiling back at McReynolds and answering questions directly to him. If the attorney appears flustered, McReynolds will lead him a dog's life, and several times Justice Black has come to the rescue of floundering lawyers.

Inside the Supreme Court itself, none of the Justices can handle McReynolds, not even the Chief Justice. The only man who once could handle him, Van Devanter, is gone. It is believed that had Van Devanter been on the Court, McReynolds would have joined in the farewell note to Brandeis and would be more likely toward Frankfurter. As it is, McReynolds has never congratulated Frankfurter and says that he doesn't intend to.

HOMER MARTIN'S SINS

President William Green and other American Federation of Labor bigwigs were beaming broadly when reporters trooped in for the press conference staged to announce the return of CIO-ousted Homer Martin back to the A. F. of L. But AFL smiles froze when a tough-talking newsman, turning to Martin, inquired:

"Homer, do you still think Mr. Green is as bad as you used to consider him?" Martin gulped, smiled weakly, finally managed to say, "What do you mean?"

"Why, don't you remember," the reporter said blandly, "all those speeches you made about Mr. Green, calling him the Judas Iscariot of the labor movement?"

At this point Green, who had been conferring excitedly with AFL press-agent Phil Pearl, rushed to Martin's help.

Anemias Benefited By Liver, Iron

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I WAS shocked the other day to receive a letter from a man living not far from a thriving modern city who said his wife had pernicious anemia and that his doctors had told him there was no cure for it.

It seemed like a missive from the Dark Ages. It seems impossible that any modern doctor could make such a statement. It seems even more impossible that any doctor who could make the diagnosis could make the statement; yet, there it is.

I wrote my correspondent as quickly as possible and said that of Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

course there was a cure for pernicious anemia, which has been proved and which is simply the feeding of liver a few ounces a day.

Known for 15 Years

This has been known to all doctors (at least all in my acquaintance) for nearly 15 years, since it was announced by Whipple, Minot and Murphy.

The action of the liver goes back to the principles which we examined in the article yesterday, that the red cells of the blood are, in health, always the same in quantity in all kinds of people—young and old, big and little. The red cells are formed in the bone marrow, and when the bone marrow ceases to function or reduces its activities, there are fewer red cells and that, of course, is what is known as anemia.

The use of liver in pernicious anemia is specific. In very few instances is liver itself used, but an extract of liver is used. This is a salty brown substance much like granulated brown sugar in appearance. It is pleasant to taste.

Won't "Cure" It

The use of liver extract will not "cure" pernicious anemia, but the regular use of it will keep the case healthy and comfortable. When relapses occur, they are usually due to the patient thinking himself so well he can get along without the extract and discontinuing its use.

In periods of ill-health—especially minor infections such as a cold—it is necessary to increase the amount taken every day.

The other medicinal agent which is of great benefit in the anemias is iron. But it is not beneficial in pernicious anemia. It is used in anemias of a different type. For instance, after a large hemorrhage iron is valuable in restoring the blood volume. It stimulates the marrow but in a different way.

Old Remedy

Iron is an old, old remedy which has been given to pale (that is, anemic) patients for ages. But it fell into almost universal disuse about 50 years ago, and for two curious reasons. One of the common forms of anemia is that in young girls, called green sickness. Its technical name is "chlorosis." It was very common 50 years ago, when the world was not so well nourished as it is today, but in these times it is quite a rarity. In the old days chlorosis could be cured absolutely with very small doses of iron. When it disappeared doctors kept giving iron to anemia patients, but in the same small doses, and they found it did no good. It was only recently, when it was discovered that to be effective iron has to be given in very large doses, that it became popular in practice again.

So we have these two medical remedies for anemia, liver and iron. You see preparations on the market which contain both, but such shotgun mixtures are unscientific. When a patient needs liver extract, we give him liver alone, and when he needs iron, we give him iron alone.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Faint Feeling," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

STARS SAY—

For Thursday, May 11

A very lively day, with many exciting events, is forecast from interesting if dubious planetary operations. There is a probability of sudden upheavals, peculiar frustrations and the lack of co-operation of employers, superiors or others sought for ready support. With proper approach and discreet control of impulsive or erratic inclinations, these sources may be influenced to assist in putting over desired programs. Personal associations should be lively and happy.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a particularly lively and productive year, despite definite upheavals, opposition and peculiar impediments. Deal tactfully with employers and superiors, whose aid is sought, refraining from impetuosity, eccentricities and overzealousness. Social factors may influence and also bring gratification to business and the private life.

A child born on this day may have very positive and direct qualities, with fine intellect but caustic tongue. It should be genial, sociable and friendly, enhancing a professional career, perhaps law.

Work of erecting buildings for the Sinclair Oil Co. tank station at Pickaway and Ohio streets has been started. The property was leased from the Pennsylvania Railroad Co.

Earl Hussey and John Heiskell record breaking tracksters of Circleville high school, were honored in an assembly program.

Helen, three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Davis, Circleville township, suffered a fractured collarbone in a fall down a stairway at her home.

25 YEARS AGO

Seniors at Everts held class day exercises and planted a maple tree on the East side of the campus. The class roll, photographs of graduates, and names of officers were placed in a bottle at the roots.

E. L. Terman, superintendent at Derby for the last two years, was elected superintendent of the district including Hilliards.

CHAPTER THIRTY

WHEN HER new publishers told Eleanor Parrish that they were giving a literary tea for her, they asked her to submit the list of guests she wished to invite.

Eleanor's laugh when she spoke to Phil about it had held a note of bravado. She had been startled to find that her list contained but three names. Of all the people she knew, she knew but three persons who understood her, her aims, her accomplishments sufficiently to share her triumph. These three were Kate Douglas, Alida Somers and Kit Cranston.

"It's too silly," she said to Phil, "to send in a list of three or four names, and I simply can't put down the names of the girls in the bridge club or the golf club. They wouldn't understand what it's all about, or enjoy it a bit."

"It's your party, isn't it?" Phil had returned.

"Yes, darling, of course it is, but if I'm going to be somebody of some importance, I'd rather like to have friends who at least speak the same language. I wish I knew a few of the people we ought to have . . . people whose names are new. I know perfectly well that the tea is simply a matter of getting publicity."

"Oh," her husband answered, pretending to catch on belatedly. "Then, maybe you'd like me to invite a few of the fellows I know."

He scribbled some names on a sheet of paper hastily and gave it to her.

Eleanor read the list, which included the names of two of the leading theatrical producers, a night club singing star, all of the widely read columnists, a young banker who was a patron of the arts, a moving picture producer, the star of the season's hit show, a woman who had won a recent European prize for her sculpture.

Eleanor looked up from the list to regard her husband with surprise and a kind of wonder at her realization she knew so little about him, about his life when he was away from her. That his business brought him contacts with the great and near-great she knew, but that he included them among his friends she had not realized.

She said: "Are these people really FRIENDS of yours, Phil?" "Sure," he said casually. "They'll all come. They'll dress up your party."

"I should imagine they would. . . . Phil—"

"Yes?"

"Why haven't I met them?" Phil had picked up a book in which he was interested. He didn't raise his head. "What?"

"You know all these people. You must know them rather well to call them friends. I just don't understand why we . . . I mean I . . . it strikes me as being rather odd, that's all."

Phil flung a leg over the arm of his chair and perused his page interestedly.

Eleanor said: "If you don't mind, Phil, I'd like to talk about this."

He closed the book, putting a finger in his place. "Shoot!" he invited.

"This is something that seems rather important to me."

He ran his fingers through his hair and suppressed a sigh.

"You know how bored I am with the kind of life I have to lead. I can't understand why you haven't made the society of scintillating people possible for me, too."

Phil tossed the book on a table. He lit his pipe and exhaled a plume of smoke before he answered: "Don't take that tone, Nell."

UNDERGROUND THEATRE

PARIS.—A new underground theatre, the largest in the world, with a seating capacity of 3,000 persons, has been constructed beneath the famed Trocadero hill and recently opened for the public. It will be used as an air raid shelter in the event of war.

"She loves being interviewed and posing for pictures," Phil told Kate.

You're a fair, reasonable girl and I'm surprised to hear you talking like an injured wife. If you are bored with the kind of life you are living, you are putting on a great show of enjoying yourself. I thought you wanted to be free to write."

She listened to him silently.

"You have never mentioned boredom. On the other hand, when I have asked you to come into town to join me in the evenings, you've always had some excuse for not coming."

"But you were working," she protested.

"My work has, as you know, been largely knowing people, the people you say, whose names are new. I've never tried to put anything over on you. You knew that I go around to night clubs and to parties. You said you had no interest in them."

"But you don't get to be friends with the people you meet at night clubs and parties."

"You do, my dear girl, in my kind of life. These people work just as hard at their jobs as you do at yours, and they take their friendships where they find them. They don't do the conventional things suburbanites do. They don't exchange invitations for home dinners and talk over their personal problems with their friends."

"And you like that sort of friendship that has no roots?"

"Nell, I don't analyze everything! I like these people. They're necessary to my job—and, perhaps, to yours."

"To mine? How?"

"Let's take the simple example of your guest list. Need I say more?"

She shook her head.

"Most friendships are based on a community of tastes and interests, just as marriage is. People share everything together, work and play. It's pretty important, Nell. If they don't, a gulf must widen between them."

It was at the tea that Senfell and Raye gave at the Raleigh hotel that Phil told Kate Douglas about that conversation.

"May an old maid give you some advice, boy?" Kate said to him.

"Anything you say always goes with us," he told her.

"Well, then, take your own advice, Phillip. There are times when you will have to be wise for the both of you. Eleanor is not quite quick at seeing things that are close to her."

"I don't know what you're getting at."

"She wants you to go to Bermuda for a holiday. She has her heart set on it."

"I can't do it, Kate. I've explained to Nell that I want her and the children to have a holiday, but good Lord, I have a job and my work is as important to me as hers is to her. Things are piling up now."

"To both of you, your marriage is the most important thing. You've never had a honeymoon. You've never had a holiday together since you've been married. You told her that it was necessary for people to share play as well as work."

Phil grinned at her, after taking a long look at his wife who was the flushed and lovely center of a group of people across the room.

"She's having a good time," he said. "She loves this. She loves being interviewed and posing for pictures."

"And she—and you—are both at a crucial point in your lives. There will be more interviews and more pictures. She's going to be a celebrity, Phil. You don't want her to find her life so full of exciting things that her marriage—and her companionship with you—belongs to the past. I'm warning you, Phil, that you've got to get a firm grasp on the situation right now, or you're going to run into shoals."

That night Phil Parrish made a decision that was forever to settle his place in Eleanor's life.

THE WICKED DEMOCRACIES

NOW some of the autocrats are complaining that, with the rich democracies arming themselves and their friendly neighbors on a lavish scale, rivalry of the two groups has become a struggle of men against money. They think it isn't fair. When they say it, they are pointing their fingers especially at Great Britain, France and America, regarding the first two as definite rivals and Uncle Sam as a supporter of their villainy.

This is a very curious attitude when you analyze it. For it should be evident to all the world that the free countries, including our own, postponed arming as long as possible, and only started to rearm when the bossed countries were armed camps devoted almost exclusively to military pursuits.

It is almost incredible that, in the midst of our nineteenth century civilization, two powerful nations and some petty imitators have concentrated on armament to a degree that dwarfs normal business enterprise, makes their countries armed camps, and makes government itself a criminal racket. And it certainly is the limit when, having driven their neighbors to defensive measures, the militarists piously turn and attack the defensive democracies as "war-makers".

The world, of course, knows better.

JAPAN CALMS DOWN

THERE has been at least one piece of reassuring news lately on the war and diplomacy fronts. It is that Japan refuses to enter a military alliance with Germany. Many Americans have supposed such a bond already existed, but the Japanese treaty pledges evidently did not bind that country to military support of the Fascist "axis" in Europe.

The gloved hand of John Bull is seen in this decision. Britain is supposed to be making a deal with Japan to insure the latter's "benevolent neutrality" in the case of a European war. Possibly, too, the return of the American fleet to the Pacific has something to do with Japan's action, although the Japs would never admit it.

From all accounts, the Japanese militarists are unhappy at the way things are going in Asia. Having almost exhausted their resources and credit in the Chinese war, they seem mired there, harassed by guerrilla attacks on their thin-stretched lines and too proud to withdraw.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up at what I thought was an early hour, but it wasn't. Just an overcast sky. Thought of the farmer who overslept one morning until 5 o'clock and when he appeared at the breakfast table told his wife: "Breakfast just starting, chores not done, only seven hours until noon, the day half gone and not a thing done." If I had to get up at 5 the day would be practically ruined.

Learned that Ed Sensenbrenner is a pessimist. Says that he has not yet put away his ear muffs, for he remembers one severe frost of May 18 and another in June that killed all of Doctor Clarke's flowers. And Ed wears both suspenders and a belt. Noted flannel trousers appearing here and there, but the first of the season I saw on Elliot Henry. Straw hats now any day.

Mosquitoes. Really, they are here. And in greater numbers than I ever have experienced before at this time of year. The other evening was along Darby creek at sundown, and here they were. Drove of them. Wonder why folk say "drives" about mosquitoes.

Believe flocks would be more nearly correct, but "flock" seems to me to be a rather weak word when stacked up alongside of "drove." Millions of mosquitoes. Smith Hulse said the pests are even more numerous now than they usually are in mid-Summer.

Henry Swearingen brought in a beautiful bouquet of flowers from his farm garden, one of the most famous in these parts. Henry comes here each Summer from the East and spends the warm and hot months tending his blossoming plants. This time there were yellow daisies, tulips and French lilacs, four different kinds.

Chatted with Elmer Clifton, who told me of how he started out to be a carpenter and really was one when he decided to go into the garage business. His helpers received $1.50 a day and Elmer aimed at $2 a day for himself. Built one of the largest barns in Pickaway county when he was just a kid. Imagine carpenters working for $1.50 a day.

Three salesmen were in and told of indications of business pick-up all through the Midwest and voicing confidence of a rise as soon as the coal strike is settled. And that settlement looks to be here. The welfare of this nation is more important than the welfare of any group of men, be they employees or employers. Roosevelt was right in taking a hand there and demanding that the warfare be ended. Everyone was beginning to feel the effect of the slowdown. How many coal trains have you seen pass through the village lately. Few, if any, and generally there are many each day.

In the evening did go to Buckeye lake with Bish Given and Earl Smith, there to go for a boat ride that raised blisters on both my hands before I turned the oars over to the barrister. Caught a few bluegills, but only a few. A lovely evening with a pair of old-timers sitting at the pier when we returned, they telling us of the good old days when those waters teemed with bass and many other varieties of fish. Well, maybe they caught more fish back in those days, but the lake is the same today as then and the sky and Spring breeze the same. And they could not have enjoyed them more.

McREYNOLDS INTENDS TO RESIGN

WASHINGTON — Publication of this story may change the situation, but latest Supreme Court news is that Justice McReynolds contemplates stepping down from the bench in the near future.

The Justice, now in his 78th year, has told his closest friends that he would get out at the end of the present court term, or at the latest, he would retire next October when the Court convenes again.

These friends have their fingers crossed, however, because once before during the current year, McReynolds told them he planned to resign. Then newspaper stories regarding his resignation got the old gentleman's dander up and he decided to stay on the bench just to prove the newspapers wrong.

McReynolds is now the oldest member of the Supreme Court in point of service, and also in point of age. Appointed because Woodrow Wilson wanted to get McReynolds out of the Attorney Generalship, the Justice was then considered a liberal. But he has been a thorn in the side of liberalism ever since.

At the present Court session, the Justice has become more and more sour, and more crude in badgering lawyers appearing before him. He seems to take a sort of sadistic delight in taunting them, interrupting in the middle of their most vital arguments.

Experienced attorneys have adopted the practice of smiling back at McReynolds and answering questions directly to him. If the attorney appears flustered, McReynolds will lead him a dog's life, and several times Justice Black has come to the rescue of floundering lawyers.

Inside the Supreme Court itself, none of the Justices can handle McReynolds, not even the Chief Justice. The only man who once could handle him, Van Devanter, is gone. It is believed that had Van Devanter been on the Court, McReynolds would have joined in the farewell note to Brandeis and would be more likely toward Frankfurter. As it is, McReynolds has never congratulated Frankfurter and says that he doesn't intend to.

HOMER MARTIN'S SINS

President William Green and other American Federation of Labor bigwigs were beaming broadly when reporters trooped in for the press conference staged to announce the return of CIO-ousted Homer Martin back to the A. F. of L. But AFL smiles froze when a tough-talking newsman, turning to Martin, inquired:

"Homer, do you still think Mr. Green is as bad as you used to consider him?"

Martin gulped, smiled weakly, finally managed to say, "What do you mean?"

"Why, don't you remember," the reporter said blandly, "all those speeches you made about Mr. Green, calling him the Judas Iscariot of the labor movement?"

At this point Green, who had been conferring excitedly with AFL press-agent Phil Pearl, rushed to Martin's help.

DIET AND HEALTH

Anemias Benefited By Liver, Iron

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I WAS shocked the other day to receive a letter from a man living not far from a thriving modern city who said his wife had pernicious anemia and that his doctors had told him there was no cure for it.

It seemed like a missive from the Dark Ages. It seems impossible that any modern doctor could make such a statement. It seems even more impossible that any doctor who could make the diagnosis could make the statement; yet, there it is.

I wrote my correspondent as quickly as possible and said that of Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

course there was a cure for pernicious anemia, which has been proved in the article yesterday, that the red cells of the blood are, in health, always the same in quantity in all kinds of people—youth and old, big and little. The red cells are formed in the bone marrow, and when the bone marrow ceases to function or reduces its activities, there are fewer red cells and that, of course, is what is known as anemia.

The use of liver in pernicious anemia is specific. In very few instances is liver itself used, but an extract of liver is used. This is a salty brown substance much like granulated brown sugar in appearance. It is pleasant to taste.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reduction Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Won't "Cure" It
The use of liver extract will not "cure" pernicious anemia, but the regular use of it will keep the case healthy and comfortable. When relapses occur, they are usually due to the patient thinking himself so well he can get along without the extract and discontinuing its use.

In periods of ill-health—especially minor infections such as a cold—it is necessary to increase the amount taken every day.

The other medicinal agent which is of great benefit in the anemias is iron. But it is not beneficial in pernicious anemia. It is used in anemias of a different type. For instance, after a large hemorrhage iron is valuable in restoring the blood volume. It stimulates the marrow but in a different way.

Old Remedy

Iron is an old, old remedy which has been given to pale (that is, anemic) patients for ages. But it fell into almost universal disuse about 50 years ago, and for two curious reasons. One of the common forms of anemia is that in young girls, called green sickness. Its technical name is "chlorosis." It was very common 50 years ago, when the world was not so well nourished as it is today, but in these times it is quite a rarity. In the old days chlorosis could be cured absolutely with very small doses of iron. When it disappeared doctors kept giving iron to anemia patients, but in the same small doses, and they found it did no good. It was only recently, when it was discovered that to be effective iron has to be given in very large doses, that it became popular in practice again.

So we have these two medical remedies for anemia, liver and iron. You see preparations on the market which contain both, but such shot-gun mixtures are unscientific. When a patient needs liver extract, we give him liver alone, and when he needs iron, we give him iron alone.

He ran his fingers through his hair and suppressed a sigh. "You know how bored I am with the kind of life I have to lead. I can't understand why you haven't made the society of irritating people possible for me, too."

Phil tossed the book on a table. He lit his pipe and exhaled a plume of smoke before he answered:

"Don't take that tone, Nell."

CHAPTER THIRTY

WHEN HER new publishers told Eleanor Parrish that they were giving a literary tea for her, they asked her to submit the list of guests she wished to invite.

Eleanor's laugh when she spoke to Phil about it had held a note of bravado. She had been startled to find that her list contained but three names. Of all the people she knew, she knew but three persons who understood her, her aims, her accomplishments sufficiently to share her triumph. These three were Kate Douglas, Alida Somers and Kit Cranston.

"It's too silly," she said to Phil, "to send in a list of three or four names, and I simply can't put down the names of the girls in the bridge club or the golf club. They wouldn't understand what it's all about, or enjoy it a bit."

"It's your party, isn't it?" Phil had returned.

"Yes, darling, of course it is, but if I'm going to be somebody of some importance, I'd rather like to have friends who at least speak the same language. I wish I knew a few of the people we ought to have . . . people whose names are news. I know perfectly well that the tea is simply a matter of getting publicity."

"Oh," her husband answered, pretending to catch on belatedly. "Then, maybe you'd like me to invite a few of the fellows I know."

He scribbled some names on a sheet of paper hastily and gave it to her.

Eleanor read the list, which included the names of two of the leading theatrical producers, a night club singing star, all of the widely read columnists, a young banker who was a patron of the arts, a moving picture producer, the star of the season's hit show, a woman who had won a recent European prize for her sculpture.

Eleanor looked up from the list to regard her husband with surprise and a kind of wonder at her realization she knew so little about him, about his life when he was away from her. That his business brought him contacts with the great and near-great she knew, but that he included them among his friends she had not realized.

She said: "Are these people really FRIENDS of yours, Phil?"

"Sure," he said casually. "They'll all come. They'll dress up your party."

"I should imagine they would."

"Yes, Phil—"

"Why haven't I met them?"

Phil had picked up a book in which he was interested. He didn't raise his head. "What?"

Phil flung a leg over the arm of his chair and pursued his page interestedly.

Eleanor said: "If you don't mind, Phil, I'd like to talk about this."

He closed the book, putting a finger in his place. "Shoot!" he invited.

"This is something that seems rather important to me."

He ran his fingers through his hair and suppressed a sigh.

"You know how bored I am with the kind of life I have to lead. I can't understand why you haven't made the society of irritating people possible for me, too."

Phil tossed the book on a table. He lit his pipe and exhaled a plume of smoke before he answered:

Art Display At School Proves Of Interest

By Lyall Cryder

Having no real knowledge of Art, but possessing an insatiable interest in the affairs of the younger people of Circleville, Wednesday, I followed an urge which took me to the high school building for a visit to the current Art display. Down Court street, over the sidewalks where I had walked so many times during my years at old Everts, I met on the way several school friends, to my eye scarcely changed at all, but to the youth of today, definitely out of the school picture.

As always the sight of the large modern school building came as a slight shock, so firmly has the picture of "My school" remained in my mind.

In the entrance hall, my inquiry for the location of the Art room, brought to my aid a gracious guide, one of the young girls of the school, who accompanied me through the spacious hall. She explained the location of the class rooms and mentioned the grade work being carried on.

What an educational plant it is! As I passed door after door where classes were in session or groups were busy in the study hall, the real interest of the students in their search for knowledge was evident. Not a head was turned in curiosity concerning a casual visitor! How times have changed!

Having been duly escorted to the Art room, it was with great pleasure that I found myself at a session of the high school der at the waste of talent which had previously been neglected. For there can be no question of talent when you see the variety and quality of the work now on display.

The sketches of period hats prepared by Miriam Weaver, and shown recently by her at a meeting of Monday Club, alone are worth the trip to the school. Asking the medium used in these, Mrs. Downing said they were chalk work, just plain ordinary chalk. Properties for the recent Senior class play, the work of Miriam Weaver and Frank Beck were included in the display.

The composite portrait of Mary Hays and Ruth Montellius, who played the part of Abby, the servant, which had been drawn by Miss Weaver, was a unique feature.

Much Work Interesting

Some work of Frank Beck's was quite interesting, a new medium called "payon" being used. Other new work is called Frescall or dry paint work and this is combined with chalk work.

Pupils of the eighth grade have formed a club which they call "Pencil and Brush." It is their earnest desire to keep their club intact through their remaining school years. Interesting work of members of the organization was on display. The sincerity of the pupils is expressed in the lovely work of all kinds now being shown in the Art room. This work, however, is only a small showing of the accomplishments of the pupils. Lack of space makes the showing incomplete.

Each member of Sketch Club had some work on display. Of no small interest to me was the display of charcoal sketches of student models. The varying expressions and outstanding characteristics have been cleverly brought out by these talented youngsters.

While sitting there quietly watching the students at work, the music of a mixed chorus filled the room, reminding me that this also is National Music week and friends are invited to hear the regular class exercises of all grades.

Truly marvelous is the up-to-date work being accomplished in our public schools. If convinced of nothing else, I am sure now that I was born not thirty but forty years too soon.

Wandering through the halls on my way out, I noticed on the walls, pennants acquired in various sports and remaining as mute reminders of the interest and enthusiasm of former classes.

Many Articles Shown

Not to go unmentioned, is the display of the Senior Girl Reserves, this being Achievement week for their organization. Many interesting articles made by the girls are now being shown in the front entrance hall.

Thinking over my visit as I walked down town, I was sure that my statement, "Having no real knowledge of Art" was correct. The second thought concerning my interest in the affairs of the younger set of Circleville is also true and greatly was my visit to the current Art display. Down Court street, over the side-

changed at all, but to the youth of today, definitely out of the school picture.

As always the sight of the large modern school building came as a slight shock, so firmly has the picture of "My school" remained in my mind.

In the entrance hall, my inquiry for the location of the Art room, brought to my aid a young girl of the school, who accompanied me through the spacious halls. She explained the location of the class rooms and mentioned the grade work being carried on.

What an educational plant it is! As I passed door after door where classes were in session or groups were busy in the study hall, the real interest of the students in their search for knowlseated in the center of the front of the room posing for full face for profile at the side. The quiet absorption of the class in its

the third year for the club and truly remarkable is the work of its members. Quietly responsive to the suggestions of Mrs. W.

of Circleville schools, the students made the most of each moment nor a moment of distraction from the work in hand.

Art Display At School Proves Of Interest

By Lyall Cryder

Having no real knowledge of Art, but possessing an insatiable interest in the affairs of the younger people of Circleville, Wednesday, I followed an urge which took me to the high school building for a visit to the current Art display. Down Court street, over the side-changed at all, but to the youth of today, definitely out of the miners originally presented 28 demands all but one have been cleared up. The remaining issue revolved around Lewis' demand for a union, or, as the operators describe it, a closed shop.

Roosevelt's Appeal After Continuous Deadlock Bears Fruit

The operators claim Lewis raised this issue because he fears that the American Federation of Labor, headed by William Green, is menacing Lewis' domination of the soft coal fields. The operators allege the nub of the entire controversy is Lewis' determination to "protect" himself against Green's A. F. of L.

The negotiations came to a "partial settlement" in the early hours of this morning after a committee of four operators and four miners battled for hours across the conference table with Dr. John R. Steelman, head of the United States Conciliation service, and Federal Mediator James F. Dewey, sitting in as President Roosevelt's representative.

Mr. Roosevelt on Tuesday, at the White House, had commanded both sides to resume negotiations Wednesday and demanded that they come to an agreement in justice to the American people by midnight last night. They conferred all forenoon, all afternoon and then began a night session. Midnight came and they still were unable to reach an agreement.

At 2 o'clock this morning the operators offered a "last appeal"—a four-point proposal designed to bring about an immediate resumption of operations. This proposal was rejected by Lewis.

The conferees, however, went back into joint session and about 3 a. m. Dr. Steelman summoned the press. After Steelman made a statement, Lewis made his announcement that he would deal individually with operators in the Appalachian area.

STORE OWNER'S GUNFIRE SENDS THIRD TO DEATH

CLEVELAND, May 11—Steven Vanicka, 21, was dead today, third victim of the gun of Jack Basicichis, 30, operator of the Lynnfield drug store in suburban Shaker Heights.

Vanicka was shot and killed by Basicichis as he and a companion attempted to hold up the drug store just before it closed late last night, according to Shaker Heights police. The companion escaped.

On the night of April 16, 1938, Basicichis shot and killed Mike Kudrak, 25, one of three men who attempted to hold up the store, and on Oct. 18, 1938, he seriously wounded another would-be robber.

Basicichis was talking to a customer when Vanicka and his companion entered the store. As Vanicka reached for a pocket containing a .38-caliber revolver, Basicichis fired with a small automatic pistol he always carries in his working coat. The bullet struck Vanicka in the chest and the impact sent him staggering into the arms of his companion.

Holding Vanicka's body as a shield, the other man backed from the store, dropping the body outside and fleeing on foot. Police were told that another man was sitting in an automobile nearby but fled when the shooting started.

AMANDA DOCTOR'S AUTO, TRUCK FIGURE IN WRECK

The auto of Dr. V. D. Reichelderfer, of Amanda, was slightly damaged about 7 p. m. Wednesday in a collision with a truck about one mile east of South Bloomfield on the South Bloomfield-Ashville road.

Deputy Robert Armstrong said a front fender of the doctor's car was damaged when it struck the rear of a truck owned by A. B. Cooper, Ashville, and operated by Ray Kuhlwein, also of Ashville. Both vehicles were going eastward.

The deputy said the doctor's car struck the truck when the truck was slowed down.

PRESIDENT HOLDS HOPES FOR END OF DEADLOCK

WASHINGTON, May 11—Although the deadline he set for resumption of soft coal mining expired at midnight, President Roosevelt today waited in "tolerance and hope" for reports from New York of an end to the coal deadlock before taking definite action.

The President had ordered deadlocked miners and operators to find some method of reopening the mines by last midnight, threatening drastic steps if they failed.

Key Measures Approved; Minor Business Still On Docket

vehicle license funds was considered a diversion.

Such a diversion would be in violation of the Hayden-Cartwright federal act, representatives of the federal bureau of roads were said to have warned.

Sen. Lawrence Kane (R-Cincinnati) claimed the bill would merely transfer license tag tax funds and did not constitute a diversion. He indicated that federal representatives believed the repayment feature remedied the diversion claim.

GOES TO HOUSE
The bill was approved as an emergency by a 30 to 4 vote and goes to the house.

Twelve Republicans bolted on the majority vote for special elections measure, while five Democrats voted with the majority side. Personalities were indulged in as the fight over the measure raged and much oratory flowed over the house loud speaker system before debate closed.

Rep. L. H. Myers (R-Allen) attacked the bill as a "utilities" move because "the utilities are afraid that unless the majority vote is reduced they'll have to pay income taxes."

He charged lack of consistency and said he refused to be a "rubber stamp." However, he changed his "no" vote to "yes" when house leaders were striving for the necessary ballots.

Rep. William Daddens (R-Cincinnati) accused Myers of lacking integrity and contended that the Allen county representative had always voted against reducing the 65 percent majority vote for special levies.

Closest estimates were that the legislature would adjourn by May 26 with the possibility the general appropriation bill would go to a conference committee.

APPROPRIATIONS DELAYED
Formerly scheduled to come to a vote Friday, the appropriation bill will not be considered by the house until next week.

Meanwhile Minority Floor Leader Michael Feighan (D-Cuyahoga) lodged the charge that the bill transferring motor vehicle license taxes to subdivisions for relief was "a bold attempt by the Bricker administration to pass its responsibility on to the local communities."

"This bill either alone or together with the proposed administration relief program is totally inadequate and does not solve the relief problem of Cuyahoga county and Cleveland," Feighan declared, "or very many other communities of the state."

He asserted that the bill did not pass until pressure was brought by lobbyists of special interests.

Vigorously supporting reduction of the majority vote, Rep. Herman Werner (R-Summit) said "a $150 tax increase on every $1,000 of assessed valuation won't make or break anyone and surely the real estate owners can pay that much to aid starving people."

He added that "this is my first term (in the house) and my last term."

New Taxes Hinted

Majority Floor Leader J. Henry McGregor declared that the legislature was faced with the alternative of favoring the bill or having new taxes.

"If we put on a new tax," he said, "we will be breaking a campaign pledge. It is unfair to force relief matching without passing enabling legislation and probably only 15 counties will take advantage of this measure."

He charged that the Ohio farm bureau and the Grange had misrepresented the bill to rural members of the house.

LOSES ON DEAL

HEBRON, Neb.—Willard Ness figured today that he was out two cents as a result of a recent banking transaction. Twelve years ago, Ness had a savings account in the Augusta, Wis., State Bank. The bank closed and is in the process of liquidation. Ness received recently a check for three cents in payment of his former account. It will cost him five cents to cash it.

Full G. O. P. Ticket?

Reports circulating through the city that the Republican party is contemplating entering a complete ticket for all city offices were partially spiked, Thursday, when Tom A. Renick, chairman of the G. O. P. executive committee, declared: "If that is a fact I know nothing of it."

Several other city offices subject to the election include auditor, which Miss Lillian Young will ask again; solicitor, for which Joseph W. Adkins, Jr., has taken out an application, and treasurer, to be sought again by John Himrod. All are Democrats.

Another question that may prove of much importance in the August primary is that of a change to the city manager form of government. The Chamber of Commerce is circulating 25 petitions which will be presented to council asking that the question be put before the voters. Its importance may overshadow any other question before the populace in the fall.

elevators had a combined capacity of five million bushels of grain. They were not completely filled, however.

All city firemen on leave were called back to their posts by an almost unprecedented order issued by Fire Marshal Michael Corrigan.

Sheet iron walls were blown high in the air.

A 5-11 alarm fire brought a large force of the city's fire fighting equipment to the scene.

The elevator is known as the company's "Calumet A" elevator and was the scene of a similar explosion and fire twelve years ago in which several persons were killed.

Robert Thomas, a witness to the explosion, declared the elevator exploded with a terrific roar. He said:

"The entire structure shuddered and shook. I could see it plainly. As the building crumbled, flames burst from the top, with heavy black smoke. Flames leaped 300 feet in the air."

The elevator has a capacity of two million bushels and was believed to have been half filled.

Other Buildings Guarded

While no other building immediately adjoined the burning structure, several other large grain elevators are located in the vicinity and firemen fought to protect these from spreading flames.

MINERS' CHIEF PROMISES END OF COAL FIGHT

miners originally presented 28 demands all but one have been cleared up. The remaining issue revolved around Lewis' demand for a union, or, as the operators describe it, a closed shop.

The operators claim Lewis raised this issue because he fears that the American Federation of Labor, headed by William Green, is menacing Lewis' domination of the soft coal fields. The operators allege the nub of the entire controversy is Lewis' determination to "protect" himself against Green's A. F. of L.

The negotiations came to a "partial settlement" in the early hours of this morning after a committee of four operators and four miners battled for hours across the conference table with Dr. John R. Steelman, head of the United States Conciliation service, and Federal Mediator James F. Dewey, sitting in as President Roosevelt's representative.

Mr. Roosevelt on Tuesday, at the White House, had commanded both sides to resume negotiations Wednesday and demanded that they come to an agreement in justice to the American people by midnight last night. They conferred all forenoon, all afternoon and then began a night session. Midnight came and they still were unable to reach an agreement.

At 2 o'clock this morning the operators offered a "last appeal"—a four-point proposal designed to bring about an immediate resumption of operations. This proposal was rejected by Lewis.

The conferees, however, went back into joint session and about 3 a. m. Dr. Steelman summoned the press. After Steelman made a statement, Lewis made his announcement that he would deal individually with operators in the Appalachian area.

STORE OWNER'S GUNFIRE SENDS THIRD TO DEATH

CLEVELAND, May 11—Steven Vanicka, 21, was dead today, third victim of the gun of Jack Basichis, 30, operator of the Lynnfield drug store in suburban Shaker Heights.

Vanicka was shot and killed by Basichis as he and a companion attempted to hold up the drug store just before it closed late last night, according to Shaker Heights police. The companion escaped.

On the night of April 16, 1938, Basichis shot and killed Mike Kuderak, 25, one of three men who attempted to hold up the store, and on Oct. 18, 1938, he seriously wounded another would-be robber. Basichis was talking to a customer when Vanicka and his companion entered the store. As Vanicka reached for a pocket containing a .38-caliber revolver, Basichis fired with a small automatic pistol he always carries in his working coat. The bullet struck Vanicka in the chest and the impact sent him staggering into the arms of his companion.

Holding Vanicka's body as a shield, the other man backed from the store, dropping the body outside and fleeing on foot. Police were told that another man was sitting in an automobile nearby but fled when the shooting started.

AMANDA DOCTOR'S AUTO, TRUCK FIGURE IN WRECK

The auto of Dr. V. D. Reichelderfer, of Amanda, was slightly damaged about 7 p. m. Wednesday in a collision with a truck about one mile east of South Bloomfield-Ashville road.

Deputy Robert Armstrong said a front fender of the doctor's car was damaged when it struck the rear of a truck owned by A. B. Cooper, Ashville, and operated by Ray Kuhlwein, also of Ashville. Both vehicles were going eastward.

The deputy said the doctor's car struck the truck when the truck was slowed down.

PRESIDENT HOLDS HOPES FOR END OF DEADLOCK

WASHINGTON, May 11—Although the deadline he set for resumption of soft coal mining expired at midnight, President Roosevelt today waited in "tolerance and hope" for reports from New York of an end to the coal deadlock before taking definite action.

The President had ordered deadlocked miners and operators to find some method of reopening the mines by last midnight, threatening drastic steps if they failed.

Key Measures Approved; Minor Business Still On Docket

vehicle license funds was considered a diversion.

Such a diversion would be in violation of the Hayden-Cartwright federal act, representatives of the federal bureau of roads were said to have warned.

Sen. Lawrence Kane (R-Cincinnati) claimed the bill would merely transfer license tag tax funds and did not constitute a diversion.

He indicated that federal representatives believed the repayment feature remedied the diversion claim.

Goes To House

The bill was approved as an emergency by a 30 to 4 vote and goes to the house.

Twelve Republicans bolted on the majority vote for special elections measure, while five Democrats voted with the majority side.

Personalities were indulged in as the fight over the measure raged and much oratory flowed over the house loud speaker system before debate closed.

Rep. L. H. Myers (R-Allen) attacked the bill as a "utilities" move because "the utilities are afraid that unless the majority vote is reduced they'll have to pay income taxes."

He charged lack of consistency and said he refused to be a "rubber stamp." However, he changed his "no" vote to "yes" when house leaders were striving for the necessary ballots.

Rep. William Daddens (R-Cincinnati) accused Myers of lacking integrity and contended that the Allen county representative had always voted against reducing the 65 percent majority vote for special levies.

Closest estimates were that the legislature would adjourn by May 26 with the possibility the general appropriation bill would go to a conference committee.

Appropriations Delayed

Formerly scheduled to come to a vote Friday, the appropriation bill will not be considered by the house until next week.

Meanwhile Minority Floor Leader Michael Feighan (D-Cuyahoga) lodged the charge that the bill transferring motor vehicle license taxes to subdivisions for relief was "a bold attempt by the Bricker administration to pass its responsibility on to the local communities."

"This bill either alone or together with the proposed administration relief program is totally inadequate and does not solve the relief problem of Cuyahoga county and Cleveland," Feighan declared, "or very many other communities of the state."

He asserted that the bill did not pass until pressure was brought by lobbyists of special interests.

Vigorously supporting reduction of the majority vote, Rep. Herman Werner (R-Summit) said "a $1.50 tax increase on every $1,000 of assessed valuation won't make or break anyone and surely the real estate owners can pay that much to aid starving people."

He added that "this is my first term (in the house) and my last term."

New Taxes Hinted

Majority Floor Leader J. Henry McGregor declared that the legislature was faced with the alternative of favoring the bill or having new taxes.

"If we put on a new tax," he said, "we will be breaking a campaign pledge. It is unfair to force relief matching without passing enabling legislation and probably only 15 counties will take advantage of this measure."

He charged that the Ohio farm bureau and the Grange had misrepresented the bill to rural members of the house.

LOSES ON DEAL

HEBRON, Neb.—Willard Ness figured today that he was out two cents as a result of a recent banking transaction. Twelve years ago, Ness had a savings account in the Augusta, Wis., State Bank. The bank closed and is in the process of liquidation. Ness received recently a check for three cents in payment of his former account. It will cost him five cents to cash it.

Full G. O. P. Ticket?

Reports circulating through the city that the Republican party is contemplating entering a complete ticket for all city offices were partially spiked, Thursday, when Tom A. Renick, chairman of the G. O. P. executive committee, declared: "If that is a fact I know nothing of it."

Several other city offices subject to the election include auditor, which Miss Lillian Young will ask again; solicitor, for which Joseph W. Adkins, Jr., has taken out an application, and treasurer, to be sought again by John Himrod. All are Democrats.

Another question that may prove of much importance in the August primary is that of a change to the city manager form of government. The Chamber of Commerce is circulating 25 petitions which will be presented to council asking that the question be put before the voters. Its importance may overshadow any other question before the populace in the fall.

To Test Johnstown?

WINNER of the Chesapeake stakes at Havre De Grace, Md., Gilded Knight, trained by Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, will attempt to outrun the Kentucky Derby winner, Johnstown, in the rich Preakness race at Baltimore, May 13. Since Johnstown also is trained by Fitzsimmons, the two horses may run as one entry.

Field Of Six Expected To Run In Big Preakness

By Harvey Rivkin

BALTIMORE, May 11—A small field will face the barrier in the 49th running of the Preakness, turf classic of the Maryland free state Saturday.

That only six of America's premier three-year-olds will face the barrier for the mile and three-sixteenths running appeared likely today. They included:

Johnstown, the heavy favorite, easy winner of the Kentucky derby last Saturday;

W. L. Brann's Chaldon, runner-up in the derby and backed as the only horse that may upset Johnstown Saturday;

King Ranch's Clencia, the dark horse supposed to upset the dope at the Preakness;

Saratoga stable's Volitant;

The Wheatley stable's Gilded Knight, and Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Impound.

The odds looked better than ever this morning for Johnstown, and it appeared that Gilded Knight may upset Chaldon for place position.

In that event, "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, trainer of both Johnstown and Gilded Knight will have his charges running one-two in the Preakness.

Johnstown had his final long trial for the Preakness yesterday. Without thought for speed, Jockey Jimmy Stout pulled him up in 1:42 2-5 for the mile. The track was slow. The veteran Fitz was well satisfied, however, and predicted today that Johnstown will be a sure winner Saturday.

Two other Preakness horses also worked out. Volitant went a mile and a furlong in 1:41 2-5 after being eased up. Challenge, stablemate of Johnstown, appeared to fancy the soft going. He was timed in 1:42 4-5 for the mile.

Following the workout, Trainer Fitzsimmons said he would make three entries in the Preakness, Johnstown and Challenger for William Woodward and Gilded Knight for Mrs. Ogden Phipps.

"Right now, I am inclined to say that Johnstown is the best horse of the entries in the Preakness," Fitzsimmons said.

"Chaldon and Impound are both good horses and they may improve over any race which I have seen them in.

"Clencia?"

"I've never seen her run so I won't express any opinion, and for that reason she has to be seriously reckoned with in my plans.

"However, Johnstown seems to be that rare thoroughbred that can shed trouble and it may be that he'll be a better horse on Saturday than he was in the derby."

It's a peculiar position that Sunny Jim will find himself in Saturday, for he'll have to saddle the favorites in the Preakness and instruct both jockeys to "get out there and win."

A fast track is predicted for the Preakness and it will be to Johnstown's liking. However, Fitzsimmons said today, that a fast track, slow one, or a sea of mud will not hinder Johnstown and the derby winner will romp home in the Preakness a winner.

DAIRYMEN TAKE INITIAL JOUST IN CITY LEAGUE

Fowler Gives Only Three Safeties In Chalking Up 4-0 Margin

Another recreation ball league season was under way today following an interesting contest Wednesday evening in which the Blue Ribbon Dairy team showed strength in turning back the Purina Chows in a 4-0 joust. The game was played on the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. field, W. Mount street, after rain had postponed games scheduled for Monday and Tuesday evenings.

Pug Fowler, one of the best pitchers in the loop last year, started off correctly with a three hit effort, Kline, Strawser and Hines touching him for safeties, one in the first and two in the third innings. The Purina team was unable to put a runner on base in the last four innings, Fowler ending the contest with a strike-out.

Hegle, pitching for the Purina crew was touched safely eight times and was hurt by three errors. The Blue Ribbon team was faultless in the field.

The first run was scored in the fifth frame when Anderson's triple followed Denny's single. Three more crossed in the sixth on Watson's single and consecutive doubles by Brungs, Stevens and Hutchinson.

THREE ROOKIES HELP RED SOX IN LEAGUE RACE

CHICAGO, May 11—Manager Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox, whose team as of today shares the American league lead with the New York Yankees, has three reasons for believing the Sox are going places this season.

"We're not going to take much pushing around from anyone this year," stated Cronin firmly in an interview.

Three rookies have much to do with Cronin's optimism, he revealed. They are Outfielder Ted Williams, who was a leading hitter of the American Association last year with Minneapolis; Pitcher Woodrow Rich, bought from Little Rock, who became famous last year when he pitched a no-hit game in his second year as a pro, and Jim Taber, third sacker, recalled from Minneapolis, who in 1938 batted .330 for the Millers and toward the close of the season in Boston hit at a .316 clip.

Of Williams, Cronin said: "He's nuts about hitting. We've waited a long time for a left handed hitter and it looks like he's it."

"Taber," said Cronin, is a real find. "Give him a chew of tobacco and he goes right to work."

As for Rich, Cronin had this comment:

"He's green, but he showed so much stuff in the Spring I had to go along with him and so far he hasn't made many mistakes."

All in all, concluded Cronin, he's got a fair bunch of boys. "They will give anybody a battle this year."

RED BIRDS MEET INDIANS IN TILT FOR FIFTH SPOT

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 11—The Columbus Red Birds moved in today on Indianapolis for the first game of a series that may decide which of the two teams has the right to fifth place in the American association races.

Meanwhile the Birds remained in sixth position following their victory yesterday over Louisville in the second consecutive overtime game. The final score was 4 to 2 for Columbus.

That left the Ohio squad six games behind the circuit-leading Minneapolis team. Indianapolis is five games behind.

The closing game of the series at Louisville was a thriller from start to finish. It ended in the 11th inning after Eddie Morgan, a former player with the Colonels, broke the tie by lifting one out of the park for a homer. A triple and a single after that cinched the game for Columbus.

The previous day the birds had won 10 to 9 in the 11th inning.

Meanwhile St. Paul broke Minneapolis' winning streak by defeating the Kels 9 to 7. That still left Minneapolis leading the league, but only one-half game ahead of Kansas City.

RED, BLACK TRACK MEN TURN BACK WESTERVILLE IN CLOSE EVENT

To Test Johnstown?

WINNER of the Chesapeake stakes at Havre De Grace, Md., Gilded Knight, trained by Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, will attempt to outrun the Kentucky Derby winner, Johnstown, in the rich Preakness race at Baltimore, May 13. Since Johnstown also is trained by Fitzsimmons, the two horses may run as one entry.

Field Of Six Expected To Run In Big Preakness

BALTIMORE, May 11—A small field will face the barrier in the 49th running of the Preakness, turf classic of the Maryland free state Saturday.

That only six of America's premier three-year-olds would face the barrier for the mile and three-sixteenths running appeared likely today. They included:

Saratoga stables' Volitant;

The Wheatley stable's Gilded Knight, and

The odds looked better than ever this morning for Johnstown, and it appeared that Gilded Knight may upset Challedon for place position.

In that event, "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, trainer of both Johnstown and Gilded Knight will have his charges running one-two in the Preakness.

"Right now, I am inclined to say that Johnstown is the best horse of the entries in the Preakness," Fitzsimmons said.

"Challenged and Impound are both good horses and they may improve over any race which I have seen them in.

"Clencia?"

"I've never seen her run so I won't express any opinion, and for that reason she has to be seriously reckoned with in my plans.

A fast track is predicted for the Preakness and it will be to Johnstown's liking. However, Fitzsimmons said today, that a fast track, slow one, or a sea of mud will not hinder Johnstown and the derby winner will romp home in the Preakness a winner.

BROADWAY PUTS ITS APPROVAL ON CONN'S ABILITY

NEW YORK, May 11—The wise boys of Broadway, who never have been quite as wise as they sound, and the forever Irish are betting on Billy Conn to out-poke Solomon Kreiger in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

They can be right, although Solomon is a pretty wise man, too. They can be right, but I have a feeling that they are permitting their enthusiasm for the handsome Irishman from Pittsburgh to run away from them.

Because Conn looks the money is no sure sign that he is going to continue to be the money. I admit that he resembles a fist-fighting man from an ancient English print in appearance and that no fighter we have seen around here in a long time packs a sounder ticker.

Fighting is the Conn kid's leather, and anybody who watches him perform for a few rounds must realize that fight is what he likes to do nothing else but.

BASEBALL TEAMS MEET

COLUMBUS, May 11 — Three games were scheduled here today for the opening of the central district Class A high school baseball tournament. Teams paired off in openers were Columbus West-Washington C. H.; Delaware-Hilliards, and Central-Lancaster. Semifinals will be played Saturday afternoon and finals May 19.

COUNCIL ORDERS SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT OPERATION TO START MONDAY

ACCEPTANCE OF WORKS DECIDED WEDNESDAY EVE

Additional W. P. A. Grant Approved; Employees To Work With Builder

Circleville's new disposal plant will be placed in operation next Monday.

The date was established by council, Wednesday night, after a conditional acceptance of the plant was made from the contractor, William Loomis & Son, of Logan, and details were worked out for the completion of the project with funds obtained in an additional grant from W.P.A.

All councilmen voted for the plant to start operations next Monday. The motion was made by Councilman William Reid. Operation of the plant will be under the direction of L. E. Miller, service director. Plant employees, selected after civil service examinations are Ervin Leist, Seyfert avenue, chemist-superintendent, and Charles Eitel, N. Pickaway street; Roy Helwagen, S. Washington street, and Arthur Stein, Pleasant street, operators.

"I'm getting tired of people asking me why they have paid an assessment and the plant hasn't been started," Mr. Reid said. Other councilmen said they had been asked the same question many times and long explanations were necessary.

"This has dragged along a long time and it has reached the time it should come to an ultimate completion," Floyd Browne, of Marion, the city's engineer on the plant project, told councilmen.

Should Be Operating

Mr. Browne said the plant should be in operation. He suggested that council make a conditional acceptance of the plant from the contractor. "If we have dry weather causing a low stage in the river there will be a need for treatment," he said. Councilmen held a recess session while Carl C. Leist, solicitor, prepared an ordinance for the conditional acceptance. This acceptance was made as of May 1.

Prior to the passing of the ordinance under suspension of rules for acceptance of the plant, council adopted resolutions accepting an additional grant of $4,060 from W.P.A. and restoring some items of the plant project at the prices originally bid for them. Certain items of the project were eliminated when it was found the city did not have sufficient funds for all originally set up in the project. The items were withdrawn after bids had been received. The resolution for the additional work requested the approval of the Federal Administration of Public works on the reinstatement of the items.

Improvements To Start
The additional work at the plant will amount to approximately $3,300. It includes construction of a roadway, gutters and catch basins, curb, walks, and loam, seeding and sodding at the site. Mr. Loomis said he expected to start work on improvements next Monday.

By starting operations next Monday the plant employees will

Life For Slaying

SENTENCED to life imprisonment for slaying of aged Maude Horne in a $6 robbery at Milton, N. H. John H. Howland, ex-Ohio convict, departs from the Dover, N. H. court. Miss Butler was not accused in the case.

have the advantage of learning details of the plant from the contractor, it was explained.

Council passed an ordinance appropriating some funds for payment of expenses incurred in connection with the plant. The ordinance included collection and bookkeeping incidentals amounting to $67.25, chemicals and other treatment supplies of $53.75, and hiring a clerk to assist the city auditor in the collection of the quarterly charges. The salary of the clerk is to be established by the finance committee.

DOLL GOES TO GIRL

A doll was presented to Margaret Ann Accord, of South Bloomfield, by the Miller-Jones Shoe Co. in a contest recently ended.

"There is no hard feeling between Homer and me," he said soothingly. "I can assure you gentlemen that I never spoke a harsh word against him."
"I don't doubt that, Mr. Green," retorted the reporter, "you undoubtedly were more sinned against than sinning."

War Preparations

Just how close the President and his lieutenants believe Europe is to war is illustrated by the following:

The Justice Department is secretly collaborating with the Treasury, Federal Reserve Board and Securities-Exchange Commission in preparing a set of far-reaching economic and financial bills for submission to Congress immediately upon the outbreak of hostilities. The bills are designed to protect banks and stock exchanges from demoralizing echoes of a European conflict, and are based on lessons learned from World War experience.

As an additional protective measure Roosevelt has set up on paper a new War Industries Board, such as controlled all U. S. production from 1917 to 1919. He has also been quietly canvassing the field of possible appointees to this board, and asked Bernard Baruch, head of the old Board, to submit a list of names, which he did. Most of them were Baruch's wartime colleagues, all now well along in years.

The President hit the ceiling when he read the candidates, but it wasn't their age that riled him. It was the fact that two of the top names recommended by Baruch were his gadfly and critic, General Hugh Johnson, and George N. Peek, one-time AAA Administrator who broke with the New Deal in a huff and opposed Roosevelt in 1936. Roosevelt made it very clear to Baruch that the last men he would appoint would be Johnson and Peek.

Garner's Mail Campaign

The House Democratic Folding Room got its biggest job of the Congressional session the other day—mailing out 1,000,000 copies of a speech boosting Jack Garner for President.

Sent under the frank of Garner's crony, Representative Milton H. West of Texas, the campaign spurge will cost taxpayers approximately $5,000.

Author of the highly esteemed opus is Roy Miller, wealthy Texas oil lobbyist and Garner's campaign impresario. Miller delivered the address before a gathering of prominent Detroit business men. Later Representative West inserted it into the Congressional Record (at a public cost of $55 a page) so it could be printed at cost in the Government Printing Office and then mailed free.

One of Miller's clinchers as to why Garner merited the support of business men for the presidency was the fact that the Vice President always spoke lightly of the late Nick Longworth, popular Republican Speaker of the House.

Tray Swiper

The mystery of the ash trays which constantly disappeared at the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation is now cleared up. For weeks women clerks in the office of Leo T. Crowley, FDIC chairman, were unable to keep an ash tray in the place. They would buy them one day. The next day they would disappear.

Finally, the girls decided to keep a close watch and discover the mysterious purloiner. To their dismay, he turned out to be none other than their boss.

Crowley has ailing sinuses which makes him extremely allergic to tobacco smoke. He can't stand cigarettes, but being soothed he didn't want to order his assistants not to smoke. So he tried to discourage them by removing the ash trays.

SWING BAND'S MANAGER SLAIN IN CHICAGO HOTEL

CHICAGO, May 11—Authorities admitted they had made no progress today in their investigation of the fatal shooting of Joseph Du Brook, 39, business manager for Roy "King" Lear's swing band.

Du Brook was shot early yesterday in the lobby of his hotel in Chicago's cabaret district in the presence of Lear and several others.

According to Lear, the killer was one of two strangers who had accosted him and Du Brook as they sat in the hotel's coffee shop. The strangers threw water on Du Brook and seemed intent on picking a quarrel, the orchestra leader said. He denied Du Brook had flirted with a woman, leading to the shooting, as first reported.

PAINT

It's time to step out in all the gay colors of the season and if you're planning to do a bit of decorating in your home, remember Goeller's paints and varnishes do the trick faster, smoother and more economically.

Dig up those old chairs and pieces of furniture that have been stored away and make them usable again with a coat of paint and varnish. The kitchen chairs or the old rocker for the porch will look like new again after a coat of enamel.
